AYUSH seats remaining after the second round of seat allotment have been hosted on the KEA Website on 19-11-2026; these seats will be considered for the third round of seat allotment. Further, seats that may be cancelled by candidates after the second round, as well as seats that may be forfeited or added to the seat matrix, will be published on the KEA Website; these seats will also be included in the third round of seat allotment. Candidates are advised to check the KEA Website frequently. Eligible candidates interested in these AYUSH seats may participate in the third round of the online seat allotment process for UG-NEET 2026.

1. Eligibility to participate in the third round:

a) Candidates who did not allotted any AYUSH seat in the first or second rounds conducted by KEA.

b) Candidates who have cancelled their AYUSH seat (allotted in the KEA second round) by paying the prescribed penalty.
c) Candidates who have already taken admission to KEA allotted AYUSH seat but wish to 'up-grade' their seat may participate in the third round of seat allotment. (As per recent orders of the Hon'ble Courts)

2. Ineligibility to participate in the third round:

a) Candidates who were allotted a seat in the KEA first round but did not exercise any choice are not eligible to participate in the third round.
b) Candidates who were allotted a seat in the KEA first round and selected 'Choice-4' are not eligible to participate in the third round.
c) Candidates who were allotted a seat in the KEA second round but failed to pay the fees or did not take admission.
d) Any candidate who has secured admission to Medical/Dental college allotted in the KEA first, second, or third round (for courses), or who has been allotted a Medical / Dental seat in subsequent Medical/Dental rounds.
e) Candidates who have reported to a college after being allotted an AYUSH seat in the first, second, or mop-up round of All-India Counseling (including Deemed Universities, Central Universities, etc.) are not eligible to participate in the KEA third round of AYUSH counseling under UGNEET 2026.

Option Entry:

a) As per Government Order No. AKUKA 288 PIM 2026, Bengaluru, 29-09-2026, remaining NRI seats will be allotted under the 'Management Quota' at the same NRI fee structure. Therefore, all candidates interested in NRI seats may enter their Options for these NRI seats.
b) Candidates are advised to check seat availability and confirm the fee structures of various colleges before participating in the AYUSH course allotment process for the 3rd round.
c) Candidates are advised to verify the fee details, confirm their decision, and consult with their parents before participating in this round.
d) Other candidates interested in AYUSH seats may participate in this round, provided they ensure that they can collect their original documents from their current college within the stipulated time. Once a seat is allotted in the 3rd round, the previously held seat will be cancelled, and it will not be possible to reclaim the old seat under any circumstances. Candidates must mandatorily take admission to the newly allotted college.

e) It is the responsibility of the candidates to obtain their original documents from their current college in order to take admission to the newly allotted college within the stipulated date and time.

f) Fees paid for other courses have already been transferred to the respective colleges and cannot be adjusted towards AYUSH courses.

g) Candidates must mandatorily report to the allotted college on or before the prescribed last date. Failure to report to the allotted college will result in the candidate not holding any seat. Such candidates will lose both seats, and the fees paid will not be refunded. Reporting to the allotted college is mandatory.

h) All candidates must enter fresh options for AYUSH courses. Options entered previously will not be considered.

i) Seats that may become available for cancellation or are added to the seat matrix after its publication will also be considered for allotment. Therefore, candidates are advised to enter all options—for colleges they are interested in joining—in order of preference, even if those seats are not currently shown in the seat matrix.

j) This is because seats that arise during the seat allotment process will also be considered for allotment. If a college is included in a candidate's list of options, there is a good possibility of being allotted a seat there.

k) Since seat allotment is based on the options entered by candidates in order of priority, candidates cannot claim ignorance after the allotment is made, nor should they refuse the allotted seat.

l) Candidates are repeatedly informed in every round to verify the fee structure before submitting their options. Despite this, it has been observed that some parents request the cancellation of an allotted seat, claiming they were unaware of the fee details.

m) Therefore, candidates are advised to carefully check the fee structure and submit only those college-course options they are genuinely interested in, arranged in order of priority.

n) If a candidate rejects an allotted college/course, or leaves the college after joining, it will be considered a serious lapse in fulfilling their social responsibility—especially given that other candidates are waiting in line for a seat allotment.

o) Before participating in the seat allotment process, candidates should check the availability of seats and be aware of the fee structure for seats across various categories.

p) It is strongly advised that candidates thoroughly understand the fee details and consult with their parents/guardians before deciding to participate in this round.

3. Instructions for candidates who have already reported to a college and are participating in this round:

a) Candidates participating in this round should understand that they are doing so with the objective of getting a 'better' seat (up-gradation) compared to the one allotted to them in a previous round. As soon as a seat is allotted in this round, the seat allotted in the previous round is automatically cancelled and cannot be reclaimed. Furthermore, it is mandatory to take admission to the seat allotted in this round.

b) Under no circumstances will a candidate be permitted to continue in the college allotted during previous rounds. As previously stated, the seat allotted in the earlier round will no longer be held in the candidate's name; candidates must mandatorily secure admission to the seat allotted in this round. There is no provision to reclaim the seat allotted in a previous round.

c) In the event that no seat is allotted to a candidate in this round, the seat allotted in the previous round will remain confirmed.

4. Regarding the steps to be taken after the announcement of the final results of the third round of seat allotment:

Candidates who are allotted a seat in the final results of the third round must pay the prescribed fees strictly in accordance with the published schedule. Furthermore, they are mandatorily required to take admission at the allotted college—along with all original documents—by the specified date. Failure to comply will result in legal action being taken against such candidates.
